

Hangley Aronchick Segal & Pudlin Adds “Schiller” to Firm Name
New name represents strategic direction and future generation of leadership

Philadelphia, PA – (September 12, 2011) – Hangley Aronchick Segal & Pudlin is proud to announce that the firm will now be called Hangley Aronchick Segal Pudlin & Schiller. The name addition recognizes shareholder Ronald Schiller, who joined the firm in 2009 along with two partners and three associates, and chairs the firm’s insurance litigation practice group.

“Ron’s insurance law practice has meshed seamlessly with our model; it is exactly the sort of sophisticated, intellectually demanding work that clients expect from Hangley Aronchick,” said William Hangley, Chairman. “Ron’s national reputation for excellence and client service has already helped us build our client base in other practice areas. Best of all, we’ve been enriched by the addition of another group of smart young lawyers.”

“The addition of Ron’s name demonstrates that we are poised and ready for the future,” said Mark Aronchick, Shareholder. “We are preserving the firm’s existing culture of excellence while simultaneously propelling it forward with a new generation of leadership.”

Mr. Schiller represents corporate clients and individuals in business litigation and has 27 years of experience representing some of the country's leading insurance companies in cases throughout the United States.

“It was an honor to be invited to join Hangley Aronchick two years ago, and it’s an even greater honor to be recognized by the shareholders of the firm in this special way,” said Schiller. “The integration of my colleagues and me into the firm has been smooth and successful, and the clients appreciate that. I’m grateful to everyone at the firm -- but particularly to Bill, Mark, Dan Segal and David Pudlin -- for the care they took to ensure that we would become members of the firm in every sense. Great firms with great cultures don’t just happen; people have to work at it.”
